

Working from Home

Working from home is a very different way of working, which requires you to work independently using technology to remain in contact with the Parish Clerk and colleagues. It requires trust, openness and transparency to ensure that homeworking is appropriate, not excessive, and not detrimental to performance or service delivery.

There is no absolute right to work from home and it is at the discretion of the Parish Clerk to limit or prevent home working in specific individual cases where trust or performance has been compromised.

Therefore, subject to approval in advance by the Parish Clerk, ad hoc home working is supported by the Council when it is appropriate or beneficial to do so. The Parish Clerk is authorised to approve occasional and irregular home-working requests. This would typically be on occasions when the diary is clear, and work requires concentration with no need to interact face-to-face with others. Another example might be where there is travel disruption due to adverse weather preventing the home-to-work journey from being made.

Any request for a regular, ongoing, or long-term home-working arrangement must be referred to the Personnel Committee for consideration and approval.

Ad hoc home-working is most likely undertaken by ‘office-based flexible workers’ as long as it is irregular in nature. In this category, adopting a regular pattern of home working – for example assigning a set day each week as ‘my working from home day’ – does not fit within the principles of flexibility as it is too rigid an arrangement and, as such, cannot be approved by the Parish Clerk and must instead be referred to the Personnel Committee.

It is important that you make it clear to your colleagues when you are working from home and maintain good and regular communications via email or telephone. When working from home this must be in accordance with the core hours to ensure communication and completion of projects within set deadlines.

If you work from home you will need to access the Council’s IT systems using your own equipment (or a Council laptop if you have been provided with one) via a secure VPN gateway. The Council is not responsible for the maintenance, replacement, or repair of any personal equipment that is used, including telephones and broadband lines, and no costs incurred as a result of ad hoc home working will be reimbursed.

You must ensure that information and equipment are kept securely and comply with all Council policies, particularly the Information Security Policy.
